When Mary Lucke, who was prevented by Officer Vauce Fields from drowning herself and child Thursday night was arraigned before Judge Helsley yesterday she told the very pitiful story of her life, which to say the least has been a very unusual one. Although her lot has been cast in hard places and her life of twenty-one years has been a sad one, her face shows no signs of vice or discipation, and show her face signs of vice or dissipation and she is far from being an unattractive or uninteresting She came to this country with her parents from Germany when twelve years of age and at the tender age of fifteen years was married to her husband was married to her husband, August Lukes, who with her mother swore that the girl was seventeen years of age at the time. Her husband abused her and after living with him five mouths she left him. Shortly after that her mother died and she was left feliantly. was left friendless. After supporting her-seif for two years as best she could she en-tered upon a life of shame, and for three years was an inmate of various houses of ill-

Last February circumstances left a baby only a few days old in her charge and she be-came so much attached to it that she adopted it with the consent of the mother, who re-sides at Thirtieth and Burt streets. She at once left her former surroundings, deter-mined to make an honest, respectable living for herself and the child and care-fully nursed it through two severe illnesses. To make matters worse the baby became seriously sick, and the discournged woman finally determined to give up the struggle and end her life and that of the ittle one. Her intention would have been arried into effect but for the intervention of carried into effect but for the intervention of Officer Fields,

After hearing her story the judge discharged her and told her that the baby had been taken to St. Joseph's hospitu. When old that the doctor said it would probably not get well, the tears rolled down her cheeks, despite her efforts to keep them back, and she begged pitcously to have the baby restored to her. The judge said that he would have it kept at the hospital until it recovered, but that he would arrange matters so that she could visit it, and that after it got well other arrangements could be made. With this dis-position of affairs she was forced to be con-tent, and quietly took her departure. HAS NERVE POLISH ALSO.

This Peddier is Preparing a Warm Berth for Himself. There's a stove polish peddler in town, and he's mighty lucky to be alive. Even this can't be said of him if he is so indiscreet to retrace his steps and allow a number indignant women in the north part of the city to gaze on his impudent face again. For real cool impudence and consummate effrontery, this stove shiner is certainly entitled to possession of the restaurant. He goes around with a little bucket filled with a Stygian decoction, and tells housekeepers they need it to keep their gasoline stoves their death engines a somber hue. If they refuse he proceeds to relieve his mind with charming ingenuousness and originality "O, I didn't suppose you'd want any," he remarked to one matron at Twenty-sixth and Decatur streets. "I know just how dir'y you western housekeepers are. You wouldn't want to have the stove contrast too strongly." with the other furniture."

To another he said, "Well, I shaut try to convince you that you're wrong. I ain't out on a lecture tour. I'm selling stove polish, and I ought to have known that nobody but intelligent people would want my goods." At another residence the mother of the lady of the house went to the door, and stated that they had all the polish that was needed for the time being.
"Oh. I don't want to talk to you," interrupted the fellow, and turning to the old lady's grandchild, said: "Tell your mother to come here. I want to talk to somebody who has got common sense."

At a house on South Tenth street, after the nousekeeper had refused to make a purchase, he was allowed to polish the stove. The lady was so well pleased with the result that she concluded to buy some of the polish, but the eccentric vendor replied: "Well, I guess you won't. If you don't know a good thing when you see it, it isn't my fault. I've just made up my mind not to sell you any. Perhaps next time you'll be willing to shine your own
